

Abstract

A containment apparatus is provided for containing fluids, such as oil and salt water leaking from a wellhead, and storing such fluids for re-use or disposal. The 5 apparatus is capable of quick installation without interfering with wellhead operation, and requires few if any tools.